CHICAGO:

Architecture, Technology & Culture

MAY 14-25, 2018

COST: $3,600

CHICAGO, IL

There is no better way to study architecture of the last 160 years than in Chicago!

This summer course will have you exploring the history of modern architecture and the dialog between architecture and technology, society, economics, politics and culture. Through multiple tours the historical and contemporary architectural sites, you will gain a better understanding of architectural history and the history of modern America.

This year's course will include tours of the Frank Lloyd Wright home and studio in Oak Park, Robie House, the Pullman neighborhood on the far south side and the Farnsworth House. Students will also participate in walking tours and the river boat tour through the Chicago Architecture Foundation and will receive a CAF student membership as part of the course.

Dr. Jeff Schramm is an historian of modern technology and an associate professor of history and political science at Missouri S&T. He teaches on architecture, technology and society (1750-present), history of technology, history of science, and western civilization. He has been recognized for his exceptional teaching with several awards.

Dr. Schramm's scholarly research to date has been on transportation and specifically 20th century railroads.

Dr. Schramm graduated from Missouri S&T in 1992 with a degree in History. He received his MA and PhD from Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, in 1995 and 2003 respectively.
